M. Middleton, a man of much affluence, and devoted to historic lore, has now been offered by him as a free gift to the nation, after spending a very large sum of money in restoring it, with much taste, artistic sense, and reverence for the past.

A legend moreover, is current in the district, according to which an im-mense amount of treasure is hidden away somewhere in the vaults below the gatehouse, by that most miserly of all English monarchs, Henry VII. It was searched for in vain by his suc-Henry VIII., and its late owner J. M. Middleton, during the years that it has been in his possession, and while the repairs were in progress, caused a most careful investigation to e made, but without result.

If he had succeeded in recovering it, would not have belonged to him, or to any other possible purchaser of the palace, but to the crown according to the ancient law which forces, under the penalty of fine and imprisonment the discoverer of any treasure trove in Great Britain, Ireland or the Channel Islands to surrender every vestige Islands to surrender every vestige thereof to the sovereign.

It is difficult to know what disposition the government will make of the palace, which has now been presented to the nation by Squire Middleton. It s improbable that it will ever again be used as a royal residence, and its nost likely destiny is its conversion into a museum of those Plantagenet Tudor and Stuart sovereigns with whom it was most closely and inti-mately identified.

Just why the Earl of Scarborough should have taken out a license to run a popular seaside resort in Lincoin-shire, it is difficult to understand, un-less it be the all-prevalent alarm created among the old territorial aris-tocracy of the United Kingdom by the socialist legislation to which the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Lloyd George, has committed the Asquith ad-ministration. DURHAM

[Special to The Times-Dispatch]
Durham, N. C., February 28—The meeting of the Historical Society on Tuesday evening proved to be of more than usual in terest. Announcement was made of a number of acquisitions to the historical resultes of the college since the last meeting. Through the efforts of Rev. M. T. "Nier, fifty-nine volumes of church records nave been collected and deposited in the society's vault for exfe-keeping. The college also has secured if lie of the Charlotte Observer, in twenty-41 en volumes, extending from 1812 to 1886. By gift or exchange many books and pamphiete have been addited to the collections of the society, of chief interest being the journals of the virginia House of Burgesses and pamphiete presented by Marshail Delancey Haywood. Tuesday night's literary program consisted of a paper on "Reconstruction in New Hanover County." by B. W. Ruark, an unusually searching analysis of economic governmental and educational conditions in the Lower Cape Fear section from 1865 to 1812. Mr. Ruark's paper is the third to be presented of a series in local history during Reconstruction. It will be published in the future. The Historical Society, in connection with the department of history, and under the leadership of Professors Boyd and Laprade, is deing much in the way of stimulating productive scholarship at the college.

Professor E. C. Brooks, who is spending a year's leave of absence doing literary work in New York, will teach in the summer school of the George Peabody Teachers' College, at Nashville, Tenn. of which Dr. Bruce R. Payne, a distinguished son of Trinity in the class of 1896, is president.

The Fortnightly Chub is the local chapter of the Signau Upellon Literary Frater-nity. After the literary program of the

New Spring Dress Goods

The New Wool Dress Goods for Spring 1914 ARE HERE! There is a greater variety of weaves shown this season than usual, because the fashionable woman requires more dresses than formerly.

FOR THE ONE-PIECE DRESSES, All-Wool and Silk and Wool Crepes lead, with Henriettas, French Serges and Wool Poplins following in the order named.

ONE OF THE INNOVATIONS OF THE SEASON is the one-piece Skirt, which is cut crosswise of the goods. This is very convenient, as it prevents piecing; but, of course, the material has to be wide enough for the skirt length. Skirts cut in this manner are made in the modified "Peg Top" style, or with two or three unstitched plaits at each side of the front and back, spreading out like a fan.

FOR THESE SEPARATE SKIRTS, Plaids and Novelty Checks lead, with Broadcloths following next.

THE FASHIONABLE SHADES are Tango, Sea Weed, Mustard, Caramel, Wisteria, Cedar Green, Hunters' Green, Reseda, Wheat, Taupe, Copenhagen, Duck, Pigeons' Wing, Olive, Navy, Copper, Gray and brown.

The list is a large one, and all of these shades are fashionable. as this is not to be a one or two-color season.
